DISCOVER

Central Park

Welcome to a national model for urban development that takes the best parts of Denver's classic neighborhoods, applies new ideas about sustainability and brings their neighborhoods to life. With a wide variety of home collections, flexible commercial property and major retail destinations, Central Park is a place for kindred spirits.

Central Park makes shopping in Denver anything but routine. From an intimate town center with specialty shops, quaint local boutiques and patio dining to Colorado seasonal farmers and antiques markets. There's a major grocery store within this special Denver community in walking distance, and nearby big-brand stores for those who like to buy in bulk. Plus a regional outdoor mall featuring a movie theater, department stores, Denver-owned boutiques, and some truly amazing restaurants with Colorado eats. All of these amenities are just a short walk or shuttle ride right from the hotel.

THE SHOPS AT NORTHFIELD

Northfield is a festive, open-air, shopping and dining experience unique to Denver. At its center, filled with amenities, is a lively Main Street lined with local boutiques, national brands and tasty restaurants. And just beyond Main Street, are the big stores: Super Target, Macy's, Bass Pro Shops Outdoor World and more. Plus, state-of-the-art movie entertainment at the family owned Harkins Theatre Northfield 18, and the top names in comedy at The Improv.

EAST 29th AVE TOWN CENTER

The heart of any Denver community is its town center. For Central Park residents, that's E. 29th Avenue. Where you can go for ice cream, grab a coffee, do yoga, buy flowers or a bottle of wine, dine al fresco or pick up the groceries. Now that's a lot of amenities right under your nose.

Hungry? There's pizza, sushi, bagels, burritos, burgers, salads and sandwiches—take your pick. Get your food to go and eat by the fountain near Founders Green next door. Here, you'll also find many professional services – from dentistry to bike rental.

QUEBEC SQUARE

Welcome to the retail mother lode, with big-brand stores such as The Home Depot, Sam's Club and Walmart. Plus specialty shops, a hair salon, an environmentally friendly dry cleaner and a whole bunch of tasty restaurants. Pretty much everything you need, right where you need it. Quebec Square is located at the corner of Quebec Street and Smith Road.

UNION STATION

EST. 1881

Sit back, relax & take in the view inside one of Denver's most iconic historic landmarks, Denver Union Station. Located in the heart of Downtown Denver, the newly renovated 1914 Beaux-Arts train station is home to 10 chef-owned restaurants, bars, & boutique shops.

within the station...

Terminal Bar

If you make your way through the newly renovated Union Station, you will quickly notice the imposing Terminal Bar, located on the east side of the building. This spot was once the ticketing office inside the Great Hall and the old windows were kept, giving guests a chance to share a little in the history of the building.

Mercantile Dining & Provision

This buzzing restaurant serves creative farm-to-table cuisine from chefs Alex Seidel & Matt Vawter alongside crafted cocktails and a well-curated selection of wine. Right now, try the roasted butternut squash soup.

Stoic & Genuine

This seafood emporium offers modern cuisine that highlights everything from oysters to crudos, and lobster sandwiches to creative riffs on classics like the paella.

Cooper Lounge

Begin or end a swanky night out at the Cooper Lounge, located on the mezzanine level of the station. The space, which has a sleek long bar with seats facing 17th Street, is fashioned with chic, yet comfortable sofas and lounging areas. The lounge offers high-end cocktails and an extensive wine list.

FOOD AND DRINK

BISTRO BARBES

At the core of a successful restaurant is a clear viewpoint, and a keen sense of identity is ever more important in our flooded dining scene. This is where Bistro Barbès, led by chef-owner Jon Robbins, shines. Barbès' menu has French undertones (Robbins, after all, is classically trained), but it's the vibrant North African, Middle Eastern, and Spanish impressions that differentiate Barbès and entice us back again and again.

THE PLIMOTH

When Chef Peter Ryan opened the Plimoth north of City Park three years ago, he wasn't looking to make a big splash, nor was he looking for press—but he got both because the tidy corner restaurant was just that good. Ryan, who is an alum of Z Cuisine and a former instructor at Cook Street School of Culinary Arts, simply wanted to feed the neighborhood.

Never did he expect the Plimoth, which is named after his hometown of Plymouth, Massachusetts, to become a dining destination where reservations are practically a must.

GUARD & GRACE

Guard and Grace is something of a high-wire act. While the restaurant caters to many types of diners—lunch-seeking downtowners, happy hour goers, couples celebrating special occasions, colleagues working business deals—it does so in a way that strays from the steak-house formula. Instead of being built just on meat and potatoes, Guard and Grace has a beautiful raw bar, cures its own charcuterie, and offers an impressive selection of fish set off by details such as Thai carrot purée or sweet soy butter.

MIZUNA

When Mizuna turned 15—something of an eternity in the restaurant industry—earlier last year, it was an occasion worth celebrating. In advance of the party, and in recognition of Mizuna’s years, chef and owner Frank Bonanno briefly closed the restaurant for a remodel. The refreshed space feels more graceful thanks to new floors, a more generous bar (behind which barman Austin Carson can better work his magic), and softer lighting. The effect is one that makes the restaurant seem more open without stripping it of its intimacy. And Mizuna, with its butter- and cream-drenched French dishes, still reigns supreme for special occasions, when flawless service is key and indulgence calls.
